Woodland Hills General Contractor | Home Remodeling & Design

Did you know that kitchen renovations are one of the biggest improvements you could make to increase the value of your home? Improving on the style, adding comfort, and making it more inviting can improve any kitchen. After all, kitchens are the most "lived" in room and a place for gathering for any household.

Woodland Hills kitchen remodeling does not always burn a hole in your wallet if you plan and budget accordingly. You do not have to demolish or change the layout but improvements can be made to enhance the functionality and aesthetics of any kitchen-without breaking the bank.

Paint Cabinets

Current kitchen trends point towards a more modernized and simple kitchen design and furnishings. If you feel that your kitchen cabinets are too outdated, don't replace them entirely. New kitchen cabinets will require several thousands of dollars and eat up most of your low budget kitchen remodeling plans. Instead, aim to paint your existing cabinets to give your kitchen a more refreshed look. Painting your cabinets can cut down on your kitchen remodeling costs.

Sink and Faucet Replacement

When considering kitchen remodeling, it makes sense to throw out the outdated sink and faucet for a new one. After all, the sink is where daily chores are performed (i.e. washing the dishes, cleaning the vegetables, etc) and will eventually get rusty and wear out. Nowadays, sinks are made out of many different types of materials such as stainless steel, cast iron, porcelain, and more. There are so many different kitchen sink shapes and sizes available to fit any budget.

Energy Efficient Appliances

Refrigerators and dishwashers are some of the biggest culprits in energy drainage and put a big dent in the electricity bills. Energy Star rating appliances tend to consume a lot less energy than appliances without this label. Choosing Energy Star appliances is a good investment to make that will allow you to save on electricity bills in the future. To achieve a simple and elegant look, choose nice but not too fancy appliances in basic colors (i.e. black, white). Remodeling your kitchen with energy conservation in mind can help you save on electricity bills.

Current favorable kitchen remodeling and design elements include: clutter-free, simple, and incorporating energy efficient appliances. It is true that home remodeling and renovations will cost, but it does not always have to burn a hole in your wallet. Whether you want to replace just the cabinets or renovate the entire kitchen, you should consult your local

Woodland Hills general contractor . To achieve your desired look, the design process is an important aspect of every kitchen makeover. Thus, it is important that you consult an expert if you wish to remodel your kitchen. Check out this for more information:

Popular 2012 Kitchen renovating trends

Kitchen remodeling, as well as bathroom remodeling, ranks at the top of the list of home improvements to consider for increasing the value of any home. Remodeling the kitchen of existing homes can add functionality, energy efficiency, and make it more aesthetically pleasing to the eye. After all, Americans spend a lot of time in the kitchens and kitchens tend to be the most "lived" in room of a home. Simplicity, smaller scale kitchen projects, and decorative lighting are amongst the latest trends for kitchen remodeling in 2012.

Trend #1: Simplicity Rules

There has been a recent trend amongst homeowners to focus on a more timeless and "less is more" look. Minimalism generally involves clean, sleek, and simple tones. Modern kitchen designs are more favorable this year and can be creatively achieved through concealed appliances. Concealed appliances attempt to hide large and bulky appliances rather than blatantly displaying them. This will shift the main focus from clunky appliances to overall kitchen design. Homeowners prefer the minimalistic approach because it can be both practical and decorative at the same time.

Trend #2: Small Scale Kitchen Projects

Instead of complete kitchen remodeling in Tarzana, recent trends show homeowners taking on smaller scale kitchen projects to increase functionality around the kitchen. An emphasis on kitchen storage, for instance, creates more space in the kitchen. Drawer organizers and roll-out trays allow dwellers to minimize clutter around the kitchen to achieve the goal of trend number one (simplicity). Minor kitchen remodeling costs less than full-scale kitchen remodels and will still give kitchens that desired "face lift" without putting a big dent in the wallet. Trend #3: Decorative Lighting

Another kitchen remodeling trend includes the increased use of decorative lighting around the kitchen. Decorative lighting can draw attention to overall décor and add character to any kitchen. Matching light fixtures, accent lighting, and scones can be implemented to achieve depth and dimension. Ideally, the ability to adjust light levels can shift a task-oriented kitchen (e.g. dish washing, cooking, etc) to a more ambient kitchen is desired. Ambience gives off a warm feeling and makes the kitchen a more inviting place for guests. Decorative lighting completes the overall effect of any kitchen design. Kitchen remodeling and upgrades provides an excellent return on investment for homeowners. In addition to increased home value, kitchen remodeling provides many benefits to the household even if there is no intent to sell the house. The desire for simplicity and minimalism, small scale kitchen projects, and decorative lighting are some of the top trends for kitchen remodeling this year. Improve your home with a room addition!

With the holidays coming up, relatives are flying in and your children are back from college. You may find that space is extremely limited and it becomes a problem when there are not enough rooms to accommodate everyone. Perhaps your home lacks a guest room and there is just not enough space for everyone. Why not consider a room addition for the New Year? Room additions can greatly enhance and improve on the functionality, value, and aesthetic attributes of any home.

Room additions are great for homeowners looking to expand their humble abode by adding an extra room to address any living space issues. When planning a room addition, be sure to figure out how to tie this extra room with the rest of the home. This includes addressing any electrical, roofing, and air conditioning concerns. Do you prefer a "3-season" room where it will not have central air conditioning or heating? Your budget, desires, and your property's constraints are all factors that go into the new space. The room addition architect should attempt to mirror the room addition as closely as possible to the original architect's work. Basically, the goal of any room addition in Woodland Hills is to ensure that it is structurally and aesthetically pleasing.

Why would people consider doing a room addition?

Room additions, for instance, can be more feasible and attractive than buying a new home just for the added room or bathroom. Perhaps, you are already living in your dream home and it makes more sense for a room addition as opposed to purchasing a brand new house for an extra room. Maybe your home is running out of space as your children grow up and you may find that an extra room is necessary for your teenagers or for additional storage. Increasing the square footage of your home with a room addition can likely increase the resale value if you do plan on selling your home in the future. More square footage means more value to your home and therefore, making your home more appealing to potential home buyers.

As you plan and prepare for a room addition, be sure to consult your local room addition expert or Los Angeles general contractor. He or she can better help you understand and determine if the room addition is safe and meets all the necessary regulations. Planning a room addition can be a daunting task, but with a room addition contractor, you can rest easy knowing that he or she can help you with the entire room addition process as well as visualize your new space. Be sure to contact your local room addition expert today if you are interested in room additions, bathroom or kitchen remodeling.

Renovating your home to gain buyers or for yourself?

To ensure a home stays marketable and up-to-date, many have sought after remodeling projects and the likes. While some homeowners remodel their homes solely to attract homebuyers, others have remodeled their homes to increase functionality as well as overall home aesthetics. In the real estate market, it goes without saying that the older and dingy-looking homes are not quite as attractive as the more modern remodeled ones. Furthermore, remodeled homes come with a bigger price tag and thus, will give you a bigger return on investment.

Before tearing anything down, decide for what purpose you are remodeling your humble abode for. Is it to make your home more marketable to homebuyers? Maybe you are remodeling solely to give your home a "facelift" with no interest to sell your home somewhere down the line. Whatever the reason, be sure to determine the motive to better help prepare for the extensive remodeling process. In addition, homeowners should also figure out what their exact budget is and discuss all the objectives with a local

Without determining the cause for remodeling, you can expect to run into problems in the long run. If you plan on converting your backyard into a concrete basketball court with two hoops, for example, you may deter potential buyers from considering your home if you decide to put the house up for sale in the future. After all, this kind of remodeling comes with a hefty price tag where only homebuyers with big pockets can afford.

Thus, you can expect your home to stay on the market for quite some time before landing a buyer who would appreciate the court (and have wallets big enough to shell out for it). However, if you are an avid basketball fan, enjoy the sport on a weekly basis and have no interest in selling the home, this kind of remodeling may give your home an edge over your neighbors'.

A little remodeling here and there to spruce up certain areas of a home can help the house look more aesthetically pleasing, sell quicker, and for more money. Giving your dinky and out-of-date master bathroom a makeover with a Sherman Oaks bath renovation, for example, can give the bath a new look as well as make it more marketable to buyers looking for a new home. You can even replace the windows and repaint the home for a new look. Remodeling does not always refer to a complete kitchen or bathroom transformation.

Homebuyers that purchase homes already remodeled and fixed-up do so to avoid the hassle of doing it themselves. When remodeling, homeowners should determine whether they are remodeling on the basis of making the house more buyer-friendly or to upgrade the home unique to satisfy their lifestyles with no intent on selling it. When upgrading the home to make it more marketable, you want to make sure there is a return on investment. Whatever your decision may be, remodeling your home can give your home that needed makeover.
