I'm growing a person

I know Im not the first nor am I the last person to be growing a person. But this is my person. i am amazed by him already. There are going to be things about him just like mommy and things about him just like daddy. Most importantly there will be things that make him just him. He will make me Laugh and he will make me cry, he may even disappoint me at times, but one thing will remain the same my love for him will be unconditional.I never fully understood a parents love until now.

Reflection

2010 is coming to a close. As I reflect on the last year I realize how much has happened and changed in 2010 and how far Ive come. Next year will be different then the past year or years and things will never be the same. There are moments I wish I could have froze time and stayed in that exact moment forever, and there are other moments I wish never happend. these are the things that make you cherish the good and never want to go back for the bad. you cant go back and you cant beat yourself up and regret all you can do is brush yourself off smile and continue on the crazy ass journey ahead. eat it up love moments hate moments but Its yours and yours alone so make it what you want
