

Fri, 2 Nov 2007

2:32 PM

Go Patriots!!

Everyone is talking about how the Colts are going to win this weekend against the Patriots. Some arguments for this outcome include: the Colts are in a better division, the Colts have played a tougher schedule, the Colts defense has improved this year, and the Colts won their last meeting. Well, what about this... although both teams at the top of most statistical charts, the Colts have not added as much to their team since last year as the Patriots have. Moss, Stallworth, Welker on offense and Thomas on defense are much more than the upgrades the Colts have made on defense. Though it will be a great game, I don't see any way that the Colts can stop the weapons of the Patriots. Plus, the Patriots are on a mission to prove that they don't have to cheat to win and are avenging a tough loss in last year's AFC championship game. My prediction.... Colts 24 Patriots 34.

Security: Public

Location: Not Specified

Mood: Not Specified

Music: