

Thu, 31 Dec 2009

4:28 AM

Part One: Templar Guide of Aion

Here aioners would like to bring you some tips for Aion. If you are interested in this guide, just keep paying attention to our website. Wish you have a good day in the wonder game.

The templar is the most defensive class(aion kinah) in Aion. They are the main tank of any group. He is designed to hold the lines and to keep enemies away from DPS classes and healers. They are the most important class along with the cleric.

If you play as templar class(aion money) and you have a skilled cleric to heal you, the success of the group is 75% assured. This class in particular uses one handed swords and one handed maces paired up with a shield. You have lots of defensive skills that require a shield, so this item is a must if you choose to play as templar.

You can use your shield not only for defensive aspects of the game(cheap aion kinah), but also as your secondary weapon. You can hit with your shield to stun enemies for example. If you play solo you will level up more slowly because you don't have very high DPS. At the other hand if you have a skilled group to play with and you tank well, you will level up very fast.

So leveling as a templar can be piece of cake if you know how to do it. We will say that if you choose this class(aion kina), you must be ready to play in groups mostly, because templar are designed to be pure tanks. If you want to be a more offensive warrior then choose the gladiator.

Of course buying Aion gold and Aion powerleveling service from our site will make the game more interesting, just contact with our customer service and place an order at any time !

Security: Public

Location: Not Specified

Mood: Not Specified

Music: Suydru

4:31 AM

Aion: Guide to Mage Classes

Dear players, welcome to aioners, The information from the official forum, we just give it a Summary. We sincerely hope it can help Aion players more or less.

Mages are at once powerful and fragile, using crowd control skills or summons to keep enemies at a distance while using ranged magic spells to attack. If a high-risk offensive class(aion kinah) that requires a lot of skill juggling sounds fun to you, then this path is your fit.

You will start the game in the Mage class with a spellbook as your weapon(aion money). At level 9 you will be given the Daeva quest, during the course of which you will be able to choose between the Sorcerer and the Spiritmaster as your specialization path- this is the same quest that gives you your wings. Upon completing the quest, your level will be set automatically to 10 in your new class.

The Sorcerer specialization follows a traditional mage path, further focusing on high damage magic spells and crowd control abilities such as sleep and shackles. The Spiritmaster learns the ability to control spirit summons, and is the only pet controlling class in the game(aion kina).

Just have fun in this wonder game! Of course buying Aion gold and Aion powerleveling service from our site will make the game more interesting, just contact with our customer service and place an order at any time

Security: Public

Location: Not Specified

Mood: Not Specified

Music: Sat

4:35 AM

Part Two: A Healing Tips for Aion Players

Hello Aion customers, welcome to our website! thanks to the loyal and new customers for supporting aioners all the time, we will devote all our efforts to returning.

A mistake we see a lot of healers make is attempting to keep all of their allies' health(aion kinah) at full all the time. Doing this will overwork the healer, distract him from the flow of battle, and run his action points dry too early. Healers, when following a group into battle, must be aware of the hierarchy of importance amongst all the classes.

In a PvE engagement, the group tank is unquestionably the most important target to keep your eye on, followed secondly by the other healers(aion money) and important damage dealers. Feel free to toss your Squid Herder friend a heal if you have nothing else to do, but not at the cost of the aforementioned targets. Remember to pace yourself.

This is an obvious thing to mention, but it is an important one so we have to talk about it. What do we mean by pace? we mean making good use of as many lower cost spells as you can in order to get the job done. This saves time, mana, and is the hallmark of a talented healer(cheap aion kinah). One can do this by using heals-over-time spells and lower level healing spells in order to keep your main targets at a manageable level.

Big heals should be reserved for the emergency situations when someone is in trouble. Only use the bare minimum you can to get by. If you can get by with only using your HoT spells, do so. We know most of these things are obvious to veteran MMO players(aion kina), but we think they are important to point out and to consciously realize as you make your way through Warhammer.

The potential for battles to carry on over extended periods of time is very great. With massive open RvR battles, swarms of enemies, and fire raining down from all directions, healers(Aion gold) have their work cut out for them. It will be more important than ever for healers to keep themselves focused and aware of these tenets. When the fate of a battle objective or a fortress hangs in the balance, pacing yourself, remaining calm, and keeping a cool head will make all the difference.

Just have fun in this game! Of course buying Aion powerleveling service from our site will make the game more interesting, just contact with our customer service and place an order at any time !

By the way, this guide was taken from other site, Hope you like.

Security: Public
Location: Not Specified
Mood: Not Specified
Music: Sudru

4:35 AM

Part Two: A Healing Tips for Aion Players

Hello Aion customers, welcome to our website! thanks to the loyal and new customers for supporting aioners all the time, we will devote all our efforts to returning.

A mistake we see a lot of healers make is attempting to keep all of their allies' health(aion kinah) at full all the time. Doing this will overwork the healer, distract him from the flow of battle, and run his action points dry too early. Healers, when following a group into battle, must be aware of the hierarchy of importance amongst all the classes.

In a PvE engagement, the group tank is unquestionably the most important target to keep your eye on, followed secondly by the other healers(aion money) and important damage dealers. Feel free to toss your Squid Herder friend a heal if you have nothing else to do, but not at the cost of the aforementioned targets. Remember to pace yourself.

This is an obvious thing to mention, but it is an important one so we have to talk about it. What do we mean by pace? we mean making good use of as many lower cost spells as you can in order to get the job done. This saves time, mana, and is the hallmark of a talented healer(cheap aion kinah). One can do this by using heals-over-time spells and lower level healing spells in order to keep your main targets at a manageable level.

Big heals should be reserved for the emergency situations when someone is in trouble. Only use the bare minimum you can to get by. If you can get by with only using your HoT spells, do so. We know most of these things are obvious to veteran MMO players(aion kina), but we think they are important to point out and to consciously realize as you make your way through Warhammer.

The potential for battles to carry on over extended periods of time is very great. With massive open RvR battles, swarms of enemies, and fire raining down from all directions, healers(Aion gold) have their work cut out for them. It will be more important than ever for healers to keep themselves focused and aware of these tenets. When the fate of a battle objective or a fortress hangs in the balance, pacing yourself, remaining calm, and keeping a cool head will make all the difference.

Just have fun in this game! Of course buying Aion powerleveling service from our site will make the game more interesting, just contact with our customer service and place an order at any time !

By the way, this guide was taken from other site, Hope you like.

Security: Public
Location: Not Specified
Mood: Not Specified
Music: Sudru

4:39 AM

Part Two: A Healing Tips for Aion Players

Hello Aion customers, welcome to our website! thanks to the loyal and new customers for supporting aioners all the time, we will devote all our efforts to returning.

A mistake we see a lot of healers make is attempting to keep all of their allies' health(aion kinah) at full all the time. Doing this will overwork the healer, distract him from the flow of battle, and run his action points dry too early. Healers, when following a group into battle, must be aware of the hierarchy of importance amongst all the classes.

In a PvE engagement, the group tank is unquestionably the most important target to keep your eye on, followed secondly by the other healers(aion money) and important damage dealers. Feel free to toss your Squid Herder friend a heal if you have nothing else to do, but not at the cost of the aforementioned targets. Remember to pace yourself.

This is an obvious thing to mention, but it is an important one so we have to talk about it. What do we mean by pace? we mean making good use of as many lower cost spells as you can in order to get the job done. This saves time, mana, and is the hallmark of a talented healer(cheap aion kinah). One can do this by using heals-over-time spells and lower level healing spells in order to keep your main targets at a manageable level.

Big heals should be reserved for the emergency situations when someone is in trouble. Only use the bare minimum you can to get by. If you can get by with only using your HoT spells, do so. We know most of these things are obvious to veteran MMO players(aion kina), but we think they are important to point out and to consciously realize as you make your way through Warhammer.

The potential for battles to carry on over extended periods of time is very great. With massive open RvR battles, swarms of enemies, and fire raining down from all directions, healers(Aion gold) have their work cut out for them. It will be more important than ever for healers to keep themselves focused and aware of these tenets. When the fate of a battle objective or a fortress hangs in the balance, pacing yourself, remaining calm, and keeping a cool head will make all the difference.

Just have fun in this game! Of course buying Aion powerleveling service from our site will make the game more interesting, just contact with our customer service and place an order at any time !

By the way, this guide was taken from other site, Hope you like.

Security: Public

Location: Not Specified

Mood: Not Specified

Music: Drufрту