So today was a pretty good day:) Orthodontist,chiropractor, and dentist...all in the morning...piano lesson later...Joseph came to see me:) After dinner, sonic(again joseph, adam, and dych to hang with)

We found out that the owners acceptedo our offer so we might have to go down again before the packers come to do the inspector:(so sad...

I don't know what i'm going to do on the last day that i see joseph:(

more later!

Since the last posting, we have bought a house, said our goodbyes, moved to Frisco,tx, went BACK to ar for a lake trip and started the 2009-2010 school year.

Right now I am attending collin College and i'm taking psychology, english, american history, and speech. The semester hasn't been too bad until this week. I took a speech midterm today, I have a history test tomorrow, a psychology research paper due tomorrow, a psych. exam monday, and a history book report due the following monday.

I haven't met too many people here (just a few people in my tuesday/thursday classes). We have finally met a few neighbors which is nice. for a while there, we thought everybody was just really mean.

We haven't found a church or a piano teacher yet...i'm really hoping that we will find some activities to get into so that i can meet some new people. It gets really lonley not doing anything....

Joseph and I are still together and I miss him every day...I won't be seeing him until the first weekend of December when he is coming down with his family. I can't wait to be able to spend as much time with him as possible.

Thats all for now.
